

HOLIDAY PAINTING in WATERCOLOR

Instructors: Paul Clendenin and Christina Erickson

In-Person, Monday, Dec. 5, 2022

10am to 2pm

$20 Members

$40 Non-Members

Get in the holiday spirit in this engaging workshop, where you'll be exposed to two different approaches to watercolor painting. You could use your work as holiday cards, gifts, or to frame and display. During the first half of the workshop, Paul Clendenin will share his technique for painting believable winter scenes, complete with sparkling snow. During the second half, we'll change directions and Christina Erickson will take you through an illustrative approach to watercolors, where we'll have fun experimenting with mark-making and loosening up with wet-on-wet paint application.

Instructor Bios Erickson and Clendenin are both active Guild members and currently serve on the board. They are experienced painters and educators and both have won awards for their work. Learn more at: <https://paul.clendenin.net/> and <https://christinaericksona.wixsite.com/christinaerickson>

MATERIALS

Watercolors Bring the colors that you have, either cake or tube paints. We have ten watercolor sets at the Guild available for your use.

Brushes Have an assortment of sizes of brushes, exact size isn't crucial

Paper

(Clendenin) I will have some blank watercolor cards and envelopes available for participants. My preference is 140 lb. cold press.

(Erickson) 140 lb Watercolor paper. My preference is hot press, but not mandatory.

Water container